JUL - 7 1991

Dear Ms. Waters:

At the request of the White House, I am pleased to respond to your letter of May 14, 1991, enclosing a petition from the United Muslims of America regarding U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

Please be assured that the U.S. and other members of the international community are sensitive to the humanitarian concerns expressed in your letter. It was with those concerns in mind that the U.N. Security Council exempted medical supplies from the sanctions regime, and allowed an exception for food where humanitarian circumstances were found to exist. Last March, the sanctions were further modified to allow increased amounts of humanitarian relief supplies into Iraq. At this time, for example, there is no restriction on exports of food to Iraq beyond a requirement to notify the U.N.

The international community has also moved swiftly to provide donations of food and other humanitarian relief supplies to vulnerable groups in Iraq, most notably the displaced persons in the Northern and Southern regions fleeing the repression of the Iraqi Government. Such donations have been flowing in at a substantial rate over the past few months, with U.S. contributions alone running into the hundreds of millions of dollars. Most recently, in response to an updated and consolidated U.N. appeal for an additional $415 million in emergency humanitarian aid to Iraq, the United States has pledged $61.3 million.

A major part of the problem in bringing relief to the neediest groups has been the Iraqi Government itself. The tremendous hardships caused by Saddam Hussein's repression of the Kurds and Shias are well documented. On a smaller scale, the recent diversion of U.N. food shipments to Saddam Hussein's hometown of Tikrit is an example of the difficulties we face with the Iraqi Government. Instead of being delivered to hungry children and other vulnerable groups as intended, those food supplies were channelled to Saddam's political supporters.

The Honorable
Maxine Waters,
House of Representatives.

The liberation of Kuwait does not, unfortunately, eliminate the threat of Iraqi aggression and instability in the region. There are still unsettled issues: for example, the destruction of nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons in Iraq; the return of Kuwaiti citizens and property; and the security of displaced Iraqi citizens. The continuation of economic sanctions is essential as a means of compelling the Iraqi Government to respond to U.N. requirements. You may be assured, however, that the sanctions will continue to be administered with a careful eye on the humanitarian needs of vulnerable groups inside Iraq.

Sincerely,

Janet G. Mullins
Assistant Secretary
Legislative Affairs

Dear Mr. President:

I write to add my voice to the concerns expressed by the United Muslims of America in their petition to you (enclosed). We ask that you move to end the trade embargo of Iraq to prevent the continuation of the inhuman conditions and suffering being experienced by the Iraqi people. The embargo currently prevents the Iraqi government from conducting the business necessary to bring food, medical supplies and other humanitarian necessities to its people.

Mr. President, Iraqi civilians are starving. Babies are dying preventable deaths. The elders lack needed medicines. As a civilized people, we can not simply debate political strategies as if the ongoing death is an insignificant consequence.

As a humanitarian gesture, I urge you to bring an end to the embargo. The United States fought a war that met its stated objective -- to free Kuwait from the Iraqi occupation. It is now time to focus on the survival of the Iraqi civilians who had nothing to do with dictator Saddam Hussein's ruthless aggression. We should not transform those crying out for help into pawns in the world's battle for oil resources and political influence.

I urge you to again assume the mantle of leadership for the allies and to secure your place on the right side of history by bringing an end to the suffering of the people of Iraq. You have the moral authority to go to the United Nations and end the embargo. I urge you to summon the political will to do so.

Sincerely,

Maxine Waters

The President of the United States,
White House
Washington D.C.

Dear Mr. President,

We the undersigned Muslim Citizens and residents of the U.S. are very appalled at the conduct of the U.S. foreign policy in total disregard to the human suffering of the Iraqi people. It is against the Geneva Convention and against the U.N. Charter to withhold food and humanitarian necessities of life as a weapon to extract concessions against any nation. This is what is happening to the Iraqi people.

In today's Los Angeles Times, Iraqi Ambassador to the U.N. requested that their country be allowed to sell one Billion Dollars worth of its oil to import food and the life sustaining necessities of life. In the same article, it states that the U.S. and its Western allies (who are members of the Security Council in U.N.) would look at such a request with careful scrutiny requiring compliance of all terms of the U.N. Cease fire resolutions, before honouring such a request. The U.N. High Commission has already reported that the U.N. relief agencies are overwhelmed in supplying relief and unless substantial world wide effort is made quickly, thousands of deaths will result. We feel that U.S. and its Western allies are targeting the people of Iraq, using them as pawns in quest of their global domination.

We request that, Iraq be allowed to take care of its own people by selling their oil. We and the world agencies are not familiar with the country and its remaining infrastructure. That all blockade of humanitarian necessities be lifted without further punishing the people of Iraq for their leader and system.

Very truly,
