ACTION

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

THROUGH: THE EXECUTIVE CLERK July for
FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT BS
SUBJECT: Report on Redeployments from the Persian Gulf

Purpose

To fill the legal requirement to report to Congress on the redeployment of U.S. forces involved in Operations Desert Storm and Desert Shield.

Background

The Desert Storm/Desert Shield Supplemental Appropriations Act required you to report on the schedule and costs of redeploying forces from the Gulf, as well as on any forces that might remain and any arrangements made with Gulf countries to host them. Dick Cheney has forwarded classified and unclassified reports, as the law requires, responding to these requirements. The reports estimate the cost of winding down the U.S. military deployment to the Gulf at $25 billion beyond the $36.1 billion incurred by Desert Shield and Desert Storm through March 31. As of 20 May, some 85% of our personnel had returned from the Gulf and 20% of cargo had been shipped. The reports state that Provide Comfort forces are not anticipated to remain in northern Iraq after September 1st and that a ground combat presence in the Gulf is not envisaged. Both reports indicate, however, that we will pursue agreements with Gulf states on enhanced exercises and prepositioning, [REDACTED] a

[REDACTED] Boyden Gray concurs in the proposed reports. 1.5

RECOMMENDATION

That you sign the letter to Congress at Tab A.

APPENDIX A

REDEPLOYMENT OF US ARMED FORCES FROM THE PERSIAN GULF AREA IN CONNECTION WITH OPERATION DESERT STORM

1. Detailed specification of the costs of the reduction in such forces.

a. It is virtually impossible to draw a line at an exact point during Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM from which redeployment costs may be measured. For example, the cost of feeding troops awaiting redeployment may or may not be considered part of the overall redeployment costs. Moreover, although the official DESERT STORM redeployment commencement date was 10 March, overall costs are broken out only at the end of each month. For this report, 31 March will be the commencement date for redeployment costs.

b. As of 31 March, the Military Departments have reported costs incurred for Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM of $36.1 billion. They are expected to continue to incur costs related to the phasedown, redeployment, and refurbishment of the military forces well into the next fiscal year. The current projection of costs to accomplish these activities is about $25 billion.

c. These costs cover a wide range of requirements including airlift, sealift, port operations, equipment maintenance, personnel support, replenishment of supplies and equipment, and continued operations. Also covered is pay of reservists remaining on active duty to support the redeployment effort.

2. Schedule for returning such forces to the United States or other locations from which they were deployed.

a. The redeployment flow schedule has been continuously refined, just as the deployment flow was, based on operational necessities. The driving concept has been, mission permitting, to have the earliest-deployed units brought home first. In some cases, units that did not have an immediate mission at the end of hostilities and could be rapidly redeployed were moved quickly even though they had not been deployed for very long. An example is large hospital units prepared to accept casualties that never materialized. Other units, such as truck companies, have been required to remain in theater to support redeployment efforts even though they were deployed at the early stages of reinforcement.

b. The redeployment schedule has incorporated the following concepts:

- (1) First-in/first-out, whenever possible.
- (2) Unit integrity maintained during redeployment.
- (3) Residual force requirement.
- (4) Redeployment of all major units and personnel within 180 days.

c. The redeployment began 6 March 1991, with the symbolic return of approximately 15,000 personnel. The official redeployment date, or R-day, was 10 March 1991. Medical units were redeployed along with the release of the hospital ships USNS COMFORT and USNS MERCY. Air Force B-52 squadrons were immediately redeployed. Other fighter, bomber, tanker, and reconnaissance squadrons were scheduled for release based on their arrival dates in theater and remaining security requirements. As the situation developed and requirements changed, USCINCCENT has modified his Air Force component redeployments accordingly.

d. The Navy scheduled the outchop of task-force vessels to draw down to the residual fleet composition as quickly as possible. This composition has been modified to support Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL. Embarked Marine Corps units were redeployed as well, with the exception of residual forces and those involved in Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL.

e. Army redeployments have concentrated on returning CONUS-based units first, since they were the bulk of the initial reinforcement forces. As these units redeploy, USEUCOM-based units deployed during Phase II have assumed the covering force role and will be the last combat units to leave the theater.

f. Using the above concepts and guidance, USTRANSCOM allocated airlift resources to USCENCOM's Service components through the establishment of quotas for passengers and short tons of cargo by day. Support for Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL have stressed redeployment capability to some extent, but the flow has gone extremely well. As of 20 May, after 72 days of movement, the DESERT SORTIE redeployment passenger flow was approximately 83 percent complete, based on identified requirements. By comparison, after 72 days of the initial deployment, only 36 percent of the eventual total had been deployed.

g. Sealift operations for redeployment concentrated at first on the diversion of vessels at sea destined for the AOR and redirection of vessels in harbors that had not yet discharged cargo. While units were processing equipment for retrograde loading, sealift assets were programmed to remove the thousands of tons of cargo that were congesting the holding areas of the ports. Once cleared, movement of unit equipment aboard roll-on/roll-off vessels commenced. The theater has averaged approximately 10 vessel sailings per day for the last month. However, it is estimated that it may take as long as 1 year to complete the removal of all unit equipment.

3. The size and composition of any element of the Armed Forces that will remain in the Persian Gulf area after FY 1991.
 - a. There are no plans for US combat forces to remain on the ground in the Persian Gulf region after end-FY 1991.
 - b. An enhanced US naval presence will be maintained in the Persian Gulf region after end-FY 1991.
 - c. Elements of the forces supporting the redeployment will remain in the Persian Gulf area for a short period after end-FY 1991.
 - d. It is not anticipated that any PROVIDE COMFORT forces will remain in Iraq after 1 September.
 - e. US forces presence will occasionally increase when bilateral exercises are scheduled.
4. A detailed discussion of any arrangement for a US military that has been made or is expected to be made to the government of any country in the Middle East.

The United States is actively pursuing negotiations with the Gulf Cooperation Council with the goal of securing agreements on maintaining a more capable naval force in the region, equipment storage, and exercise programs. The United States believes that agreements of this nature will provide adequate deterrence and flexibility in responding to contingencies.

Medical units were redeployed along with the release of the hospital ships USNS COMFORT and USNS MERCY. Air Force B-52 squadrons were immediately redeployed. Other fighter, bomber, tanker and reconnaissance squadrons were scheduled for release based on their arrival dates in theater and remaining security requirements. As the situation developed and requirements changed, USCINCCENT has modified his Air Force component redeployments accordingly.

d. (U) The Navy scheduled the outchop of task-force vessels to draw down to the residual fleet composition as quickly as possible. This composition has been modified to support Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL. Embarked Marine Corps units were redeployed as well, with the exception of residual forces and those involved in Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL.

e. (U) Army redeployments have concentrated on returning CONUS-based units first, since they were the bulk of the initial reinforcement forces. As these units redeploy, USEUCOM-based units deployed during Phase II have assumed the covering force role and will be the last combat units to leave the theater.

f. (U) Using the above concepts and guidance, USTRANSCOM allocated airlift resources to USCINCCENT's Service components through the establishment of quotas for passengers and short tons of cargo by day. Support for Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL have stressed redeployment capability to some extent, but the flow has gone extremely well. As of 20 May, after 72 days of movement, the DESERT SORTIE redeployment passenger flow was approximately 83 percent complete, based on identified requirements. By comparison, after 72 days of the initial deployment only 36 percent of the eventual total had been deployed.

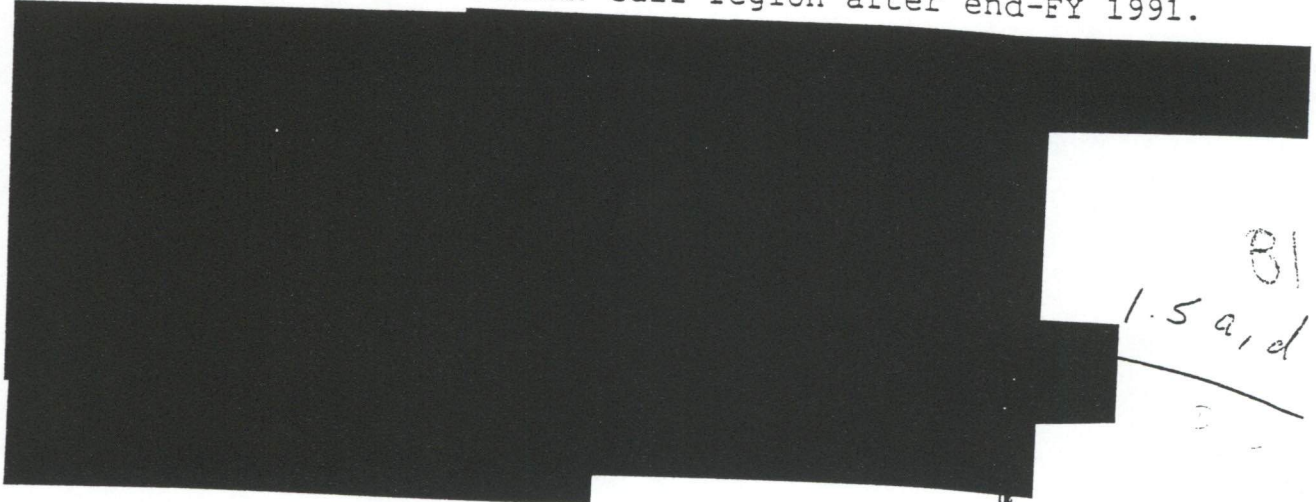

g. (U) Sealift operations for redeployment concentrated at first on the diversion of vessels at sea destined for the AOR and redirection of vessels in harbors that had not yet discharged cargo. While units were processing equipment for retrograde loading, sealift assets were programmed to remove the thousands of tons of cargo that were congesting the holding areas of the ports. Once cleared, movement of unit equipment aboard roll-on/roll-off vessels commenced. The theater has averaged approximately 10 vessel sailings per day for the last month. However, it is estimated that it may take as long as 1 year to complete the removal of all unit equipment.

h. ~~(S)~~ As of 20 May, of the approximately 455,000 total passengers requiring redeployment, 378,000 have returned. Of the approximately 6.1 million measurement tons of sealift cargo required, 1.2 million tons have been shipped.

3. (U) The size and composition of any element of the US Armed Forces that will remain in the Persian Gulf area after FY 1991:

a. (U) There are no plans for US combat forces to remain on the ground in the Persian Gulf region after end-FY 1991.

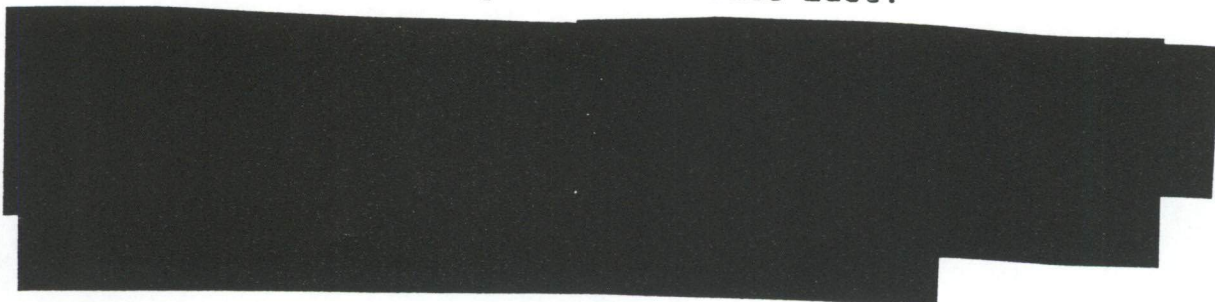

c. (U) It is likely that US forces contributing to maritime interception operations in the Red Sea will remain in the region until sanctions are lifted.

d. (U) Elements of the forces supporting the redeployment will remain in the Persian Gulf for a short period after end-FY 1991.

e. (U) It is not anticipated that any PROVIDE COMFORT forces will remain in Iraq after 1 September.

f. (U) US forces presence will occasionally increase when bilateral exercises are scheduled.

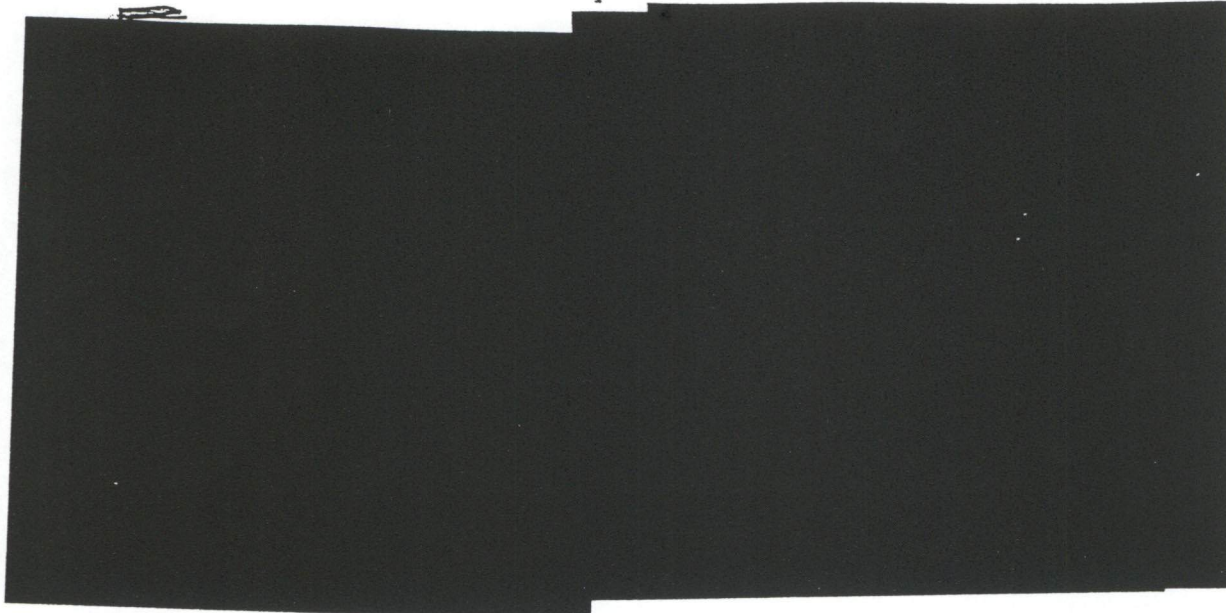

4. (U) A detailed discussion of any arrangement for a US military presence that has been made or is expected to be made to the government of any country in the Middle East.

SUBJECT: Report on Redeployments from the Persian Gulf

Purpose

To fill the legal requirement to report to Congress on the redeployment of U.S. forces involved in Operations Desert Storm and Desert Shield.

Background

The Desert Storm/Desert Shield Supplemental Appropriations Act required you to report on the schedule and costs of redeploying forces from the Gulf, as well as on any forces that might remain and any arrangements made with Gulf countries to host them. Dick Cheney has forwarded classified and unclassified reports, as the law requires, responding to these requirements. The reports estimate the cost of winding down the U.S. military deployment to the Gulf at $25 billion beyond the $36.1 billion incurred by Desert Shield and Desert Storm through March 31. As of 20 May, some 85% of our personnel had returned from the Gulf and 20% of cargo had been shipped. The reports state that Provide Comfort forces are not anticipated to remain in northern Iraq after September 1st and that a ground combat presence in the Gulf is not envisaged. Both reports indicate, however, that we will pursue agreements with Gulf states on enhanced exercises and repositioning,

Boyden Gray concurs in the proposed

RECOMMENDATION

That you sign the letter to Congress at Tab A.

APPENDIX A

1. Detailed specification of the costs of the reduction in such forces.

a. It is virtually impossible to draw a line at an exact point during Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM from which redeployment costs may be measured. For example, the cost of feeding troops awaiting redeployment may or may not be considered part of the overall redeployment costs. Moreover, although the official DESERT STORM redeployment commencement date was 10 March, overall costs are broken out only at the end of each month. For this report, 31 March will be the commencement date for redeployment costs.

b. As of 31 March, the Military Departments have reported costs incurred for Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM of $36.1 billion. They are expected to continue to incur costs related to the phasedown, redeployment, and refurbishment of the military forces well into the next fiscal year. The current projection of costs to accomplish these activities is about $25 billion.

c. These costs cover a wide range of requirements including airlift, sealift, port operations, equipment maintenance, personnel support, replenishment of supplies and equipment, and continued operations. Also covered is pay of reservists remaining on active duty to support the redeployment effort.

2. Schedule for returning such forces to the United States or other locations from which they were deployed.

a. The redeployment flow schedule has been continuously refined, just as the deployment flow was, based on operational necessities. The driving concept has been, mission permitting, to have the earliest-deployed units brought home first. In some cases, units that did not have an immediate mission at the end of hostilities and could be rapidly redeployed were moved quickly even though they had not been deployed for very long. An example is large hospital units prepared to accept casualties that never materialized. Other units, such as truck companies, have been required to remain in theater to support redeployment efforts even though they were deployed at the early stages of reinforcement.

b. The redeployment schedule has incorporated the following concepts:

- (1) First-in/first-out, whenever possible.
- (2) Unit integrity maintained during redeployment.
- (3) Residual force requirement.
- (4) Redeployment of all major units and personnel within 180 days.

c. The redeployment began 6 March 1991, with the symbolic return of approximately 15,000 personnel. The official redeployment date, or R-day, was 10 March 1991. Medical units were redeployed along with the release of the hospital ships USNS COMFORT and USNS MERCY. Air Force B-52 squadrons were immediately redeployed. Other fighter, bomber, tanker, and reconnaissance squadrons were scheduled for release based on their arrival dates in theater and remaining security requirements. As the situation developed and requirements changed, USCINCCENT has modified his Air Force component redeployments accordingly.

d. The Navy scheduled the outchop of task-force vessels to draw down to the residual fleet composition as quickly as possible. This composition has been modified to support Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL. Embarked Marine Corps units were redeployed as well, with the exception of residual forces and those involved in Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL.

e. Army redeployments have concentrated on returning CONUS-based units first, since they were the bulk of the initial reinforcement forces. As these units redeploy, USEUCOM-based units deployed during Phase II have assumed the covering force role and will be the last combat units to leave the theater.

f. Using the above concepts and guidance, USTRANSCOM allocated airlift resources to USCENTCOM's Service components through the establishment of quotas for passengers and short tons of cargo by day. Support for Operations PROVIDE COMFORT and SEA ANGEL have stressed redeployment capability to some extent, but the flow has gone extremely well. As of 20 May, after 72 days of movement, the DESERT SORTIE redeployment passenger flow was approximately 83 percent complete, based on identified requirements. By comparison, after 72 days of the initial deployment, only 36 percent of the eventual total had been deployed.

g. Sealift operations for redeployment concentrated at first on the diversion of vessels at sea destined for the AOR and redirection of vessels in harbors that had not yet discharged cargo. While units were processing equipment for retrograde loading, sealift assets were programmed to remove the thousands of tons of cargo that were congesting the holding areas of the ports. Once cleared, movement of unit equipment aboard roll-on/roll-off vessels commenced. The theater has averaged approximately 10 vessel sailings per day for the last month. However, it is estimated that it may take as long as 1 year to complete the removal of all unit equipment.

3. The size and composition of any element of the Armed Forces that will remain in the Persian Gulf area after FY 1991.

a. There are no plans for US combat forces to remain on the ground in the Persian Gulf region after end-FY 1991.

b. An enhanced US naval presence will be maintained in the Persian Gulf region after end-FY 1991.

c. Elements of the forces supporting the redeployment will remain in the Persian Gulf area for a short period after end-FY 1991.

d. It is not anticipated that any PROVIDE COMFORT forces will remain in Iraq after 1 September.

e. US forces presence will occasionally increase when bilateral exercises are scheduled.

4. A detailed discussion of any arrangement for a US military that has been made or is expected to be made to the government of any country in the Middle East.

The United States is actively pursuing negotiations with the Gulf Cooperation Council with the goal of securing agreements on maintaining a more capable naval force in the region, equipment storage, and exercise programs. The United States believes that agreements of this nature will provide adequate deterrence and flexibility in responding to contingencies.

REDEPLOYMENT OF US ARMED FORCES FROM THE PERSIAN GULF
AREA IN CONNECTION WITH OPERATION DESERT STORM (U)

1. (U) Detailed specification of the costs of the reduction in such forces.

a. (U) It is virtually impossible to draw a line at an exact point during Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM from which redeployment costs may be measured. For example, the cost of feeding troops awaiting redeployment may or may not be considered part of the overall redeployment costs. Moreover, although the official DESERT STORM redeployment commencement date was 10 March, overall costs are broken out only at the end of each month. For this report, 31 March will be the commencement date for redeployment costs.

b. (U) As of 31 March, the Military Departments reported costs incurred for Operations DESERT SHIELD and DESERT STORM of $36.1 billion. They are expected to continue to incur costs related to the phasedown, redeployment, and refurbishment of the military forces well into the next fiscal year. The current projection of costs to accomplish these activities is about $25 billion.

c. (U) These costs cover a wide range of requirements including airlift, sealift, port operations, equipment maintenance, personnel support, replenishment of supplies and equipment, and continued operations. Also covered is pay of reservists remaining on active duty to support the redeployment effort.

2. (U) Schedule for returning such forces to the United States or other locations from which they were deployed.

a. (U) The redeployment flow schedule has been continuously refined, just as the redeployment flow was, based on operational necessities. The driving concept has been, mission permitting, to have the earliest-deployed units brought home first. In some cases, units that did not have an immediate mission at the end of hostilities and could be rapidly redeployed were moved quickly even though they had not been deployed for very long. An example is large hospital units prepared to accept casualties that never materialized. Other units, such as truck companies, have been required to remain in theater to support redeployment efforts even though they were deployed at the early stages of reinforcement.

b. (U) The redeployment schedule has incorporated the following concepts:

(1) First-in/first-out, whenever possible.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 101. (a) In administering the Persian Gulf Regional Defense Fund, the Secretary of Defense shall use the corpus of the Fund only to the extent that amounts from the Defense Cooperation Account established under section 2608 of title 10, United States Code, are not currently available.

(c) For purposes of this section, the term "corpus of the Fund" means the amount of $15,000,000,000 appropriated by this Act to the Persian Gulf Regional Defense Fund from the general fund of the Treasury, as such amount is restored from time to time by transfers from the Defense Cooperation Account.

(TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

SEC. 103. (a) For the purpose of adjusting amounts appropriated to the Department of Defense for fiscal year 1991 to reflect changes in expenses due to the order to active duty (other than for training) of members of the National Guard and Reserves in connection with operations in and around the Persian Gulf as part of operations currently known as Operation Desert Shield (including Operation Desert Storm), the Secretary of Defense may during fiscal year 1991 transfer not to exceed $446,000,000 among the fiscal year 1991 Military Personnel appropriation accounts of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 107. (a) All equipment, supplies, and other materials (including construction equipment and construction materials described in subsection (b)) of the United States that, after August 1, 1990, were transported to or procured by the United States in the Middle East for the use of the Armed Forces of the United States or the use of the armed forces of any other member country of the multinational coalition participating in Operation Desert Storm shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be removed from the Middle East to the United States or to any United States military installation outside the United States and the Middle East as soon as practicable in conjunction with the removal of such forces of the Armed Forces of the United States from the Middle East.

(b) The construction equipment and construction materials referred to in subsection (a) are construction equipment and construction materials used in the construction of military facilities for the Armed Forces of the United States in the Middle East in connection with Operation Desert Storm.

(c) Subsection (a) does not apply to any equipment, supply, or material that—

(1) is to be transferred to a foreign government under the provisions of subsection (e); or

(2) has negligible value; or

(3) is to remain under the control of United States forces in the region; or

(4) is to be stored in the Middle East as prepositioned equipment and material for the use of the Armed Forces of the United States; or

(5) has been expended, depleted, or rendered unusable; or

(6) has been formally notified to Congress prior to March 20, 1991, under the Arms Export Control Act.

(d) The President should attempt to obtain reimbursement from the government of each country in the Middle East for the cost to the United States of materials referred to in subsection (a) that are not removed from that country because of impracticality.

(e) Except as deemed essential by the Commander-in-Chief of the United States Central Command for the conduct of the war in the Persian Gulf prior to a permanent cease-fire, no equipment, supply, or material referred to in subsection (a) or which was captured from Iraq by United States forces in the context of Operation Desert Storm may be transferred to the government or any entity of any foreign country in the Middle East except as provided through the regular notification procedures of the Committees on Appropriations, the Committees on Armed Services, the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate.

President.

(f) The President shall notify Congress of the proposed storage of any equipment, supply, or material referred to in subsection (a) in a prepositioned status referred to in subsection (c)(4).

President.
Reports.

(g) The President shall report to the Committees on Appropriations and Armed Services of the House of Representatives and Senate sixty days after the enactment of this Act, on the quantity, condition, value, disposition, and manner of seizure of all enemy equipment falling under the control or the possession of the United States, as well as all enemy equipment falling under the control of allied forces, within the Desert Storm theater of operations.

(h) For the purposes of this provision, the term "material" shall include all lethal and nonlethal instruments of war and their supporting elements, components and subcomponents.

President.
Reports.

SEC. 108. (a) Not later than sixty days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the President shall submit to Congress a report, in both classified and unclassified forms, on the redeployment of the forces of the Armed Forces of the United States that were deployed in the Persian Gulf area in connection with Operation Desert Storm.

(b) The report shall contain the following information:

(1) A detailed specification of the costs of the reduction in such forces.

(2) The schedule for returning such forces to the United States or other locations from which the forces were deployed to the Persian Gulf area in connection with Operation Desert Storm.

(3) The size and composition of any element of the Armed Forces of the United States that will remain in the Persian Gulf area after fiscal year 1991.

(4) A detailed discussion of any arrangement for a United States military presence that has been made or is expected to be made to the government of any country in the Middle East.

(c) In this section, the term "Operation Desert Storm" means Operation Desert Shield, Operation Desert Storm, and any related successive operations of the Armed Forces of the United States.

SEC. 109. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act or any other provision of law shall be available for sales, credits, or guarantees for defense articles or defense services under the Arms Export Control Act to any country that has made a commitment to contribute resources to defray any of the costs of Operation Desert Storm and that has not fulfilled its commitment.

SEC. 110. The establishment of the Persian Gulf Regional Defense Fund by this Act and the establishment of a working capital account pursuant to title I of the Persian Gulf Conflict Supplemental Authorization and Personnel Benefits Act of 1991 shall be treated for all purposes as establishment of the same account in the Treasury.
