Scope and Content

The materials in FA003 (Education) are a systematically processed body of documents from the White House Office of Records Management (WHORM) Subject File. This secondary subject category contains materials relating to the federal government supplying the prerequisite monies crucial to the existence of key education programs. Numerous examples can be cited as cases in point. The need for the full funding of Head Start, greater federal investment in academic facilities for research and training, increased federal aid for disabled student loans, and reducing regulations on federally sponsored research at universities are just a few of the matters dealt with at length here. Other types of records include fact sheets and copies of bills. The former seem to revolve around the aftermath of the Los Angeles riots in the spring of 1992 and how to best help the affected areas return to a degree of normalcy. Two specific projects along these lines would be Weed and Seed and Federal Relief Assistance (FRA). Among the bills broken down in detail are the Income Dependent Education Assistance Act of 1991 (IDEA) and the State and Local GI Bill for Children.

System of Arrangement
